Summary

Ben's support package is currently untouched, which means he hasn't received any care services this quarter despite having a budget of $17,573.85 available to him. This could mean a few different things — either a provider hasn't been arranged yet, the care plan is being finalised, or there may be a delay in getting support started. The really important thing to check on is whether Ben actually has a provider lined up and ready to start, because having approved funding doesn't help if the services aren't being delivered. On the positive side, there are no health concerns flagged and no hospitalisations in the past year, which suggests he's managing well at the moment, but it's worth getting that care in place sooner rather than later so it's there when he needs it.
