

Summary

Your parent is currently using their NDIS funds at a steady pace, with government covering most of the cost at around $20,800 this financial year while you're contributing about $4,800. The good news is they've only used 3.5% of their lifetime budget of nearly $138,000, which means there's plenty of room for their care needs over the long term. However, the annual entitlement showing zero suggests you'll need to check with their planner about how their budget is structured, as this might affect what support you can access going forward. It's worth having a conversation with their NDIS coordinator soon to make sure the funding arrangement is working well for your family's situation.
