Summary

Dorothy's care costs have significantly exceeded her quarterly budget, running at 182% of what was allocated, which means you've spent an extra $5,453 this quarter that wasn't planned for. The good news is that she's receiving solid support with 122 services delivered and no hospital admissions over the past year, which suggests her care is working well to keep her stable at home. However, the spending overage is the key issue you need to address urgently, as these costs will quickly add up if they continue at this pace. It's worth sitting down with BlueBerry Care to understand what's driving the extra expenses, whether Dorothy's needs have genuinely increased or if there are efficiencies to be found. With no open concerns flagged and no hospitalisations, Dorothy seems to be getting the right care, but the budget situation needs fixing before it becomes unmanageable.
