Summary

Dorothy's care costs have run significantly over budget this quarter at 182%, which means BlueBerry Care has provided substantially more support than what was approved for her funding. With 122 services delivered and no open concerns flagged, it appears Dorothy is receiving the care she needs, but the spending pattern is something you'll want to discuss urgently with her provider to understand whether her needs have genuinely increased or if there's been a billing issue. The good news is that she hasn't needed hospital care in the past year, which suggests her at-home support is keeping her relatively stable, but you should follow up on those 50 low-priority anomalies to make sure everything is being recorded correctly. I'd recommend contacting BlueBerry Care this week to get clarity on why costs have doubled, so you can work together on a plan that keeps Dorothy safe while managing her budget properly.
