DSignificant concerns — consider your options

Summary

We've reviewed BlueBerry Care's recent invoices for Dorothy's support, and there's something important you need to know: they haven't provided any evidence that the care they've charged for actually happened. Out of eight statements we looked at, seven showed red flags that suggest the services may not have been delivered as billed. The good news is there's no unexplained money missing, but the concerning part is that BlueBerry Care hasn't responded to our questions about what went wrong. We'd recommend reaching out to them directly to ask for proper documentation of the care Dorothy received, or consider whether you might want to explore other providers who can give you clearer records of the support they're delivering.
